New Officers

Because President Kathleen Newton's company, Northwest Media Consultants, will be handling PR and advertising for the upcoming road funding campaign, Newton officially stepped down from her position. The group nominated Doug Olson to be the new president and Bill Goodman to be vice president. The nominations passed unanimously. Olson said he would inquire to determine if there was a volunteer for secretary.

Political Action Committee Discussion

Doug Olson reported that his research revealed that a political action committee cannot be formed until there is a formal ballot measure around which to organize. He said the committee can raise what funding it needs as an association. He said, in doing so, the committee must keep good records of all funds raised so they eventually can be reported when the PAC is formed. He said it is likely that the group won't convert to a PAC until after the first of the year.

Olson reported that Tillamook CPA Steve Simpson has volunteered to donate his time to the committee to keep the books and audit all the contribution records, as required by law.

Funding Measures

Olson and Newton reviewed what the committee had decided at its recent meetings. It was noted that, after studying all the various options, two emerged as the most plausible for addressing the road funding challenge: a local option tax and/or a bond measure. By a small margin, the committee voted to support the bond measure as most preferable because it gets the work done right away and has other advantages.

Olson also noted that he and Newton had met with the four mayors from North County in recent weeks and they are generally supportive of the bond option. A meeting with the remaining mayors is being scheduled, as well.

Newton noted that she would be rebuilding the roads website to focus on marketing the funding measure and will add a donation button when she does that will make it possible for people to donate to the campaign. The group needs to raise up to $35,000 for an optimal campaign, but will adjust spending to accommodate what is raised.

Olson reported that Commissioner Hurliman also has floated the idea of an annual parcel fee that would be used to underwrite a bond and then be used to maintain roads, but more study is needed to determine the legality and efficacy of this measure. A similar proposal had been studied earlier by the committee, but found to not be legal as it had been envisioned at that time. We do not know if Hurliman's measure would be different. It was pointed out that such a measure is very regressive. That is, a senior citizen on a small fixed income would pay the same tax on his or her parcel as Fred Meyer would pay on its parcel. Thus, such a measure might be popular with large landholders and the wealthy, but not the general population.

Fair Booth

The committee has secured a booth at the County Fair and Newton is working on materials for the display. Volunteers are being sought to work the booth. Newton is preparing a publication to hand out at the booth. It was also suggested that the booth have petition forms for each alternative for people to sign, as well as sign-up forms to receive updates, receipts for donations, and displays of county road designations and road department budgets.

Newton explained that volunteers will be contacted for a "booth training" session that will be held a day or two before the fair to help everyone with talking points.

The meeting adjourned. No date was set at this time for subsequent meetings.
